POSTCARD

The first day of school is a huge milestone. Did you know that students around the world kick off the year in completely different ways, from massive candy-stuffed cones in Germany to first-day signs and photos in the US?

In this Zoom Postcard, you'll step into the shoes of a Cultural Anthropologist to explore our collaborative global gallery and dive into three big questions:

- What does the morning rush look like?
- What does school actually feel like?
- And how does the day actually feel, from the nervous stomach butterflies to pure pride?

Bring your best stories, get ready to look through a whole new lens, and see how different and similar we really are. We are looking forward to you joining us!
